

Why not stop spending the people's tax money in making small political jobs for the faithful? School funds, road funds, dog funds—scarcely any public fund escapes the watchful eye of the political boss. School trucks could be let to lowest responsible bidders and thus avoid harsh criticism of the school board. Juniors should have some educational qualification as well as good character. Let's have men who will stand the test of public favor in his home community in public office.

Election November 2nd. Very little has been said or done to get the vote out in this county on November 2nd. It is true Hon. H. St. George Tucker's opposition will be weak, if at all, but Democrats should bear in mind the importance of casting every vote. It is dangerous to acquire the habit of staying away from the polls. Mr. Tucker is an able and courageous representative and we want to know that every Democrat will help swell his majority for Congress from Old Appomattox. Let the Executive Committee get busy now and urge all Democrats to come out and vote for Mr. Tucker, the party's nominee.

State Highway Commission held a meeting in the court house here this morning to hear objections to proposed closing of three railroad crossings between Evergreen and Pamplin. There were a number of business men of Evergreen and farmers who appeared and entered objection to the closing of the first crossing east of Evergreen. No objections were made to closing the other two crossings—one mile west of Pamplin and the one west of Boler. The commission took time to consider the question.

The Fair of 1926 is over and the exhibits and show were creditable both to the management and the exhibitors.

Since there is a disposition on the part of some to discontinue the annual exhibit of the County's products and progress, we feel that a word from those who are not directly interested in a financial way will not be a miss. The Fair should be kept up by all means. The old Appomattox boys and girls have gotten accustomed to coming home to the Appomattox Fair and the business men of the town will miss the institution if they allow it to pass away. The farmers, too, should take a great interest. Larger premiums should be given for live stock and agricultural and poultry exhibits. Make it a real agricultural county fair.

AERIAL SURVEY TO OPEN VIRGIN LAND

Much Expected of Air-Mapping of Alaska.

Ketchikan, Alaska.—Flying two miles high to map 40,000 square miles of Alaskan territory, much of which seldom before has been seen by man, is a task that furnishes plenty of thrills, according to Lieut. Ben H. Wyatt, officer in charge of the navy air mapping expedition which started operations out of Ketchikan. It is by far the largest survey in aviation history, and the service of any nation and from the standpoint of the ruggedness of the terrain, surveyed it has no equal. The lieutenant said.

Writing in the Chronicle, Lieutenant Wyatt declared that "the rapidity with which an aerial survey can be made is astounding. An airplane flying at 15,000 feet above sea level making 100 miles an hour can survey a strip seven miles wide and 100 miles long—that is 700 square miles—in one hour. Imagine the man on the ground covering 700 square miles of rugged mountain territory in an hour."

The mapping of Alaska offers many difficulties that seem almost insurmountable. Lieutenant Wyatt declared that the task "is and will be a severe test on the serviceability of aircraft. Its ability to operate for long periods of time away from the home base is the test of many and severe difficulties. It is the supreme test of the practicability of the aerial method and last but by no means least, a real service test for the men of the expedition."

The country over which we are flying has not been all that we would expect it to be. The land of Alaska is particularly fascinating. This would be a consulting thought to the pilot and photographer, as they were plotting their way homeward after having landed on one of the snow-capped peaks a hundred or so miles away from their base.

Native Praise Work. Alaskans generally are enthusiastic in their praise of the good which is being done by the air-mappers. Much territory heretofore hardly known has been discovered to contain immense possibilities for future industry. Telling of this phase of the work, Lieutenant Wyatt said: "We have discovered lakes on the island of the Aleutians (on which Ketchikan is situated) that eventually will produce tremendous power to turn the wheels of industry."

Unseen Sources of Long Life

The basic sources of automobile value are not always apparent to the eye.

A motor car, like a house, may LOOK a great deal more substantial than it really is. Because of this difficulty, more and more thousands are turning to Dodge Brothers product for insurance against disappointment.

The years have proved, and each year proves anew, that Dodge Brothers are as deeply concerned with the UNSEEN goodness of their motor car as with the seen.

The mileage it will deliver, the safety it will provide, the expense and trouble it will save the owner over a period of years, are quite as important to Dodge Brothers as the more obvious details of equipment and style.

British Fort, Now Haven for Hobos, Up for Sale

London.—Any person who desires to buy a good circular fortress, more than a century old and beautifully situated on the English channel, can purchase it of the British war office for a suitable consideration. It is one of the string of towers which dot the coast in the southeastern corner of England, erected when the islanders were panic-stricken over the reported purpose of Napoleon Bonaparte to cross the English Channel and invade the island.

Representatives of the "hobo" have found this particular tower a good place of residence. The hobo is now occupying it in considerable numbers from night to night. The war office apparently thinks it is time Napoleon's unconscious contribution toward relieving the present congestion should be more profitably realized upon. At any rate, it wants to get rid of the property and it is to be sold at auction shortly.
